abuse of its powers, that further declaratory and restrictive clauses should be added: And as extending the ground

RESOLVED by the Senate and House of Representatives, concurring that the following Articles be proposed to the Legislatures of the several States, as amendments to the said Constitution, to be valid to all intents and purposes, as part of the said Constitution; viz<sup>to</sup>

ARTICLES in addition to, and Amendment of the Constitution of the several States, pursuant to the fifth Article of the original Constitution.

the first..... After the first enumeration required by the first Article of the Constitution, there shall be one Representative for every thirty thousand Persons, until the number of Representatives shall amount to two hundred, after which the proportion shall be so regulated by Congress, that there shall be not less than one Representative for every fifty thousand Persons, nor more than one Representative for every fifty thousand persons.

the second.... No law, varying the compensation for the services of the Senators and Representatives, shall take effect, until an increase of compensation has taken effect.

the third..... Congress shall make no law respecting an establishment of religion, or the free exercise thereof, or the right of the people to assemble, and to petition the Government for a redress of grievances.

the fourth.... A well regulated Militia, being necessary to the security of free States, the Congress shall provide for organizing, arming, and disciplining the same, in conformity with the Principles of the Constitution.

The FÆDERALIST, No. 10.

To the People of the State of New-York.

AMONG the numerous advantages promised by a well constructed Union, none deserves to be more accurately developed than its tendency to break and control the violence of faction. The friend of popular governments, never finds himself so much alarmed for their character and fate, as when he contemplates their propensity to this dangerous vice. He will not fail therefore to set a due value on any plan which, without violating the principles to which he is attached, provides a proper cure for it. The instability, injustice and confusion introduced into the public councils, have in truth been the mortal diseases under which popular governments have every where perished; as they continue to be the favorite and fruitful topics from which the adversaries to liberty derive their most specious declamations. The valuable improvements made by the American Constitutions on the popular models, both ancient and modern, cannot certainly

The influence of factious leaders may kindle a flame within their particular States, but will be unable to spread a general conflagration through the other States: A religious sect, may degenerate into a political faction in a part of the confederacy; but the variety of sects dispersed over the entire face of it, must secure the national Councils against any danger from that source: A rage for paper money, for an abolition of debts, for an equal division of property, or for any other improper or wicked project, will be less apt to pervade the whole body of the Union, than a particular member of it; in the same proportion as such a malady is more likely to taint a particular county or district, than an entire State.

In the extent and proper structure of the Union, therefore, we behold a republican remedy for the diseases most incident to republican Government. And according to the degree of pleasure and pride, we feel in being Republicans, ought to be our zeal in cherishing the spirit and supporting the character of Fæderalists.

PUBLIUS.
