

STATION ONE

Artifacts

Station 1 Artifact B

"The Indians were tall and well formed. They cover themselves with a piece of deer skin. They have a custom when they see that they are going to die... of crying out loudly... They are very affectionate and kind toward their children."

— Álvaro Núñez Cabeza de Vaca, La Relación (1542)

Station 1 Artifact D

Station 1 Artifact E

Station 1 Artifact F

STATION TWO

Artifacts

Station 2 Artifact A

Station 2 Artifact B

"On foot slow and awkward, but on horseback graceful, they are the most expert and daring riders in the world. In battle they sweep down upon their enemies with terrific yells... discharging bullets or arrows over and under the animal's neck accurately."

Station 2 Artifact C

Station 2 Artifact D

Station 2 Artifact E

Station 2 Artifact F

STATION THREE

Artifacts

Station 3 Artifact A

“The next day a woman, who governed this nation, came to visit me with the principal persons of the village... We went together to their temple, and after the priests had invoked their God for a quarter of an hour they conducted me to the cabin of their Chief... All the villages of this tribe speak the same language. Their cabins are covered with straw, and they are not united in villages, but their huts are distant one from the other. Their fields are beautiful. They fish and hunt. There is plenty of game, but few cattle...

— Henri de Tonti, 30 March 1690

Station 3 Artifact B

Station 3 Artifact C

Station 3 Artifact D

Station 3 Artifact E

STATION FOUR

Artifacts

Station 4 Artifact A

Station 4 Artifact B

“The drum hangs from the wall of the tusla. It is sacred and must always be respected. Only those who know the chants well may play it.”

“The awelo would sometimes enter the tusla or tribal ceremonial room and join the people in dancing... His presence in the tusla caused the entire room to light up and glow as if there were lights in the building.”

Station 4 Artifact D

Station 4 Artifact E

